Peerless Cooking Stove.
Here is the opinion of the editor of the Boston Herald.—We have been very much pleased in examining a stove of this pattern, manufactured by Messrs. Pratt & Wentworth of Roxbury for the Fair Exposition, at the store of W. F. Shaw & Co., 369 Washington Street. It is one of the most beautifully finished articles of kitchen furniture we have ever seen, the moldings being elegantly finished, the knobs and handles silver plated, the tank and hot chest are made of German silver, all the hollow ware used on the stove is finely enameled, and the tea-kettle is of burnished copper.

Among the peculiar merits claimed for this stove is the complete ventilation and even temperature of the oven, making it a roasting rather than a baking oven, which is secured by a peculiarly constructed air-chamber, which keeps the air as it passes down behind the fire pot and into the oven, causing the oven to bake or roast perfectly and evenly, a great desideratum with a careful housewife; the perfect control which can be kept over the fire, and its cleanliness. This stove works equally well with coal or wood. These stoves are of different sizes, and are made plain or with an extension top, the latter being made with a large reservoir for hot water on the top, and a warming cock underneath. Those of our readers who would like to keep up with the times would do well to call and examine this "Peerless stove."

NEWPORT AND THE STATE.

We print in this paper the report of the annual meeting of the Rhode Island Society for the Promotion of Domestic Industry. In the list of officers may be found the names of gentlemen from nearly every town in the State except those in Newport County. From this city, the second in the State, there is not one. In the lists of officers of the Butler Asylum and the State Historical Society respectively, Newport is represented by one name. How is it that our city has so little part in these great movements of social science, which are the agents for developing the wealth, engaging the benevolence, in elevating and improving the people and enhancing the honor of the Commonwealth? Are not the citizens of Newport interested in these enterprises which are engaging the attention of public-spirited men all over the land? Or, are we unable to furnish our quota of men capable of sharing in the trusts and responsibilities of works of this character? The remark is frequent that Providence monopolizes the office and arrogates to herself the honor and responsibility of conducting the public affairs of the whole State. If she is willing to do this and has the public spirit which leads her citizens to carry forward those movements which the age demands for the advancement of civilization, and we are content to look on without taking any part in them, what cause have we to complain? Newport is not an uninterested spectator of the development of the industry of Rhode Island; and she certainly has a magnificent share in its history. She ought not to be content to be ignored as a participant in all that pertains to the prosperity and glory of that community to which the Island has given its name. Our insular location is not now, if it ever was, a serious obstacle to frequent communication between us and the sister Capital which has come to be the seat of nearly all that distinguishes Rhode Island in the estimation of the country. While Providence has organized, and most honorably sustains her agricultural, horticultural, mechanical and literary associations, what have we been doing? Where, in the country, could a better start be made than here of agricultural or horticultural products? Where, is our fruit-grower's society, our Mechanics' Association, or our other organizations for developing the industrial resources and the wealth of which we are so partial? With our magnificent harbor, our wonderful beauty of location and our luxurious soil, we might take a high rank in those racial features which are the ambition of other American cities.

If our readers think we are croaking or belittling our city, we assure them we write in no such spirit. It is because we are proud of Newport and wish her to take the rank she might easily take among the proudest cities of the nation, that we write these lines. We do not think this city ought to be without her full share of the activity and the honor of everything that makes Rhode Island a proud Commonwealth in the galaxy of States. Her past history is a glory and a pride for many generations. Let the honor of the past and its promise for this and future generations be fulfilled, and there will be nothing to complain of in this regard. If there is a disposition elsewhere to overlook her claims, let them be pushed into notice and be proud to be deserving, and the merited positions cannot be denied her. Her capital and enterprise are sent abroad to do their work elsewhere, we build up other cities at the expense of our own. If employed and encouraged at home, we shall see the results rising up around us in the expansion and beauty which they cause to appear in all places where such a course is followed. Especially should we see to it that in all the movements for the increase of Rhode Island's prosperity and honor, we bear such a part as always to share in the credit which is reflected upon our State.

Reconstruction.

Mr. Johnson's new plan of reconstruction, in the arrangement of which he had for several days the counsel of pardoned rebels from the South, meets but little favor from any portion of the press except that which has all along favored everything that promised success to the spirit of rebellion and opposed all that looked to the restoration of the Government on the basis of equal rights. This plan is objectionable because it demands of the North the concession of the leading ideas which have influenced it a loyal both during the war and in the attempt at reconstruction. It ignores the fact of rebellion and speaks of the Southern States as ejected from Congress. It does not disfranchise even the leading rebels, but leaves the way open for the admission to Congress of Mr. Stephens, who is already a Senator elect, and of Jeff. Davis, who may be such at any day. It fails to enfranchise the negroes who fought for the salvation of the country, or to make the proper security for their enfranchisement a portion of the Federal Constitution, but leaves in its State Constitutions, which, if it be inserted in them, may at any time be changed so as to renege them to their present helpless condition. In short, it is a measure in the interest of treason and traitors rather than of freedom and loyalty.

House, provides for constituting each of the late rebel States a military district with military officers appointed for Governor. The necessity of this measure is seen in the impunity with which all sorts of outrages and crimes have been committed upon freedmen and white Unionists in all parts of the late Confederacy, not one crime against them or in the interest of disunion as against the Union having been punished by the civil authorities since the close of the war. It is alleged moreover, that the present State governments have no warrant in the Constitution or the laws, having been organized under the assumed authority of the President, who has no grant of such authority from any source. Military commanders may be appointed for communities formed into military districts, by the Constitution and laws and immemorial usage. Our government knows no such officer as a provisional governor.

For the redress of such grievances as now exist at the South, the military power is the appropriate and only sure remedy. The bill which contemplates the placing of these communities in this position has the approval of Gen. Grant and the other great leaders of the army, and it is believed it will receive so general a support in Congress as, if pressed for enactment, will secure for it a passage. If this result follow the determined rejection, by the South, of the terms heretofore offered, there is promise of a speedier and more equitable adjustment of the reconstruction question than appears attainable by any method yet attempted.

A meeting of the standing committee was held immediately after the adjournment of the Society, the first Vice President J. M. Bourn in the chair. Hon. E. Dyer was elected Secretary pro tem.

The subject of an exhibition, referred from the society, was fully discussed, when, upon motion of Mr. Geo. F. Wilson, it was voted that a general exhibition, cattle show and fair be held during the ensuing year, and that a committee, to whom should be entrusted the necessary arrangement for carrying this matter into effect, be authorized to cooperate, as they may deem expedient with the New England Agricultural Society in any action the same may be taken of holding a fair in this State during the current year.

Protection for Ice. It will strike distant readers as rather odd that New England should ask protection for its ice interests, for there is a general impression that if there is any one article which we can produce clearer, stronger and more beautiful to the eye and taste than any other portion of the globe, it is ice. But our dealers in ice see danger in the new tariff bill which proposes to admit ice from the British Provinces free, and therefore they ask our Legislature to suggest to Congress that ice must be protected. They state that the first cargo of ice ever exported as merchandise was shipped from Charlestown by Frederic Tudor, Esq., in the month of February, 1835. That during the past year, ice, including freight, to the amount of a million of dollars has been shipped from Boston, and that as labor, which is the chief cost, is double what it is in the Province, and owing to heavy taxes, an advantage is given to our neighbors, this industry must have protection or the Bluesnoses will monopolize the business of supplying Southern States and leave our ice merchants out in the cold. The committee are of the opinion that the imposition of a small duty would not affect the price to consumers in Massachusetts as much as it would
